If you are interested in studying at NC State University, please contact your university’s Study Abroad Office for more information, application instructions, and deadlines.

Exchange students can apply to live in on campus at NC State. They may also apply to live in a learning “village” community of students with shared academic, personal, or lifestyle interests. Each village is unique and has its own application. Popular villages include Global Village, Arts Village, S.T.A.T.E. Village, and Eco Village.

Wolf Village, an on-campus apartment complex for NC State upper-classmen and graduate students, is also a great option for exchange students. Students who live off campus may arrange their own housing.

The Study Abroad Office (SAO) will be here to support and help students find their way. Students will be assigned a regional advisor and 2-3 Cultural Ambassadors, who will offer support throughout their exchange. This makes the transition to a new university easier.
